GOLF TOURNAMENT A BIG SUCCESS

The weather looked a little iffy, but the day turned out great and everyone involved had a terrific time. We had 64 golfers, and 33 hole sponsors, and 10 volunteers to help with sign-in and hole watching. The winning foursome consisted of Bill Inman, Judy Milligan, Derek Higgs, and Ed Johnson. Closest to the pin winners were Melissa White, John Springthorpe, and Robert Rogers. Many thanks to the following companies who donated items for prizes or the goody bags: BB&T, RBC Centura, Southern Community, First Citizens, Mt. Airy Oil, Granite City Mortgage, Patterson Automotive, Workforce Carolina, and John Jackson Insurance.

Dr. John Wear, Jr. director of Catawba Center for the Environment. Dr. Wear oversees the Environmental Science & Studies Programs at Catawba College. He spoke about the fragility of our environment and the importance of taking steps to do everything we can to protect it. When the center was built at the college it was done as a "green" building implementing environmentally friendly construction methods.

Pilar Gerasimo

Pilar Gerasimo, Editor in Chief of Experience Life magazine (circulation of 500,000) talked with us about Emotional Fitness. Taking a whole life approach to health and fitness is paramount in leading an emotional and physically healthy lifestyle. Being able to manage and direct your emotional energy, and finding the appropriate responses to stressful situations, helps promote good health and success.

Lisa Fox talks with former educator Vera Reynolds

Kirby McCreary brought Lisa Fox with the All Kinds of Minds program at Chapel Hill for a very interesting presentation. The program helps educators develop skills using neurodevelopmental content needed for working with children who have diverse learning abilities. The goal is to provide a way for children who need help to learn and find success. The principles of this program are based on the research of Dr. Mel Levine, education expert and pediatrician. For more information on All Kinds of Minds, Schools Attuned, Dr. Levine and more, go to www.allkindsofminds.org.

Myra Dove used her bubble gum to hold the teams project together

Ms. Fox gave each table 6 Popsicle sticks to create four equal sided triangles. Some of us are VERY creative.
